A Walk In The Park is, in the words of it's protagonist Brian Fass, 'a science fiction film, a psychedelic journey back to the womb...'. This documentary-like journey, cinematically speaking, progresses from non-fiction to fiction, and dizzily, dazzlingly back again. It is an ironic biopsy of truth, depression, addiction, family relations, ambition, retribution, violence and poetry.

Scrabble. Othello. Answer: Risk. Albert Lamorisse is, cinematically speaking, best known as a brilliant film maker who produced poignant short films. The best known of his films, widely watched both within his native France and around the world, was 1956's iconic The Red Balloon -the story of a young boy and his adventures with a sentient balloon. Unlike Lamorisse's Oscar winning and heartwarming short film, however, another one of his creations is certainly not heartwarming and has ...
